Steam Humidifier

Is dry air healthier? Not so much.

Dry air can impair the respiratory immune system's defenses, increasing the amount of time germs and viruses stay alive in the system.

With a steam humidifier from Commercial Service, you can keep your home humid and protect you and your family from increased chances of contracting COVID-19 and other respiratory diseases.

Humidifiers can also help with skin irritation from wearing face masks all day. The higher moisture in the air keeps your skin from drying out so quickly.

Total Home Humidity Control

A Trane total home humidifer restores moisture levels to the air in your home, increasing your comfort while protecting your belongings and your family's health.

Total home humidifiers add an important element of comfort to your indoor environment. Your air may be clean by using an efficient filter or air purifier. However, without the proper humidity levels, it's not as comfortable as it could be. During winter months, or in dry climates, the air in your home will dry out from running your heat system.

What is relative humidity?

Relative humidity is a percentage that represents how much water vapor is in the air compared to the total amount of water vapor it can have. According to a recent study[1], the Coronavirus does not stay suspended in the air as long when the relative humidity level is between 40-60%.
